Give Us This Day: A Love Story (The Our Father series Book 2) Sally Malkowski
As a young attorney, Marty Simpson convicts Bart Larsen of stalking and sexual abuse. Two decades later, that conviction is coming back to haunt him. To make matters worse, his former high school sweetheart is now dating Bart.

Judy Harmony and her daughter Karen are living in Washington to be near Johns Hopkins, where Karen goes for treatment for a rare and incurable disease. Judy chose to separate from her husband ... a freighter worker out of northern Michigan ... rather than add more stress to his life by telling him of his daughter's illness. But the separation is taking a toll on her.

A dreaded middle-of-the-night phone call alerts Bob Eckland, the owner of The Mortgage Payment, one of D.C.'s hottest nightclubs that his establishment is on fire. In an effort to save lives, he circumvents the fireman, plowing through the smoke, ashes and debris. When his body is finally discovered, he is near death.

John Newman, shepherd for the Archdiocese of Washington, and Silvia Kirby, the feisty/embittered administrator of Georgetown University hospital, both graduate from the same orphanage. Although he's been in love with her from the onset, he feels his life on the streets deems him unworthy. He turns his life over to God, to make amends for his youthful mistakes.

Focusing on Georgetown in D.C. and northern Michigan, GIVE US THIS DAY (previously released as BITTERSWEET PARKWAY: A BEND IN THE ROAD) - a "feel good love story with a Christian attitude"- continues to be narrated by Samantha Eckland.
