The core of this six months in Susan's professional career was the "Susan Boyle In Concert" Tour of the southern United States in October and November plus the release of her 6th album, Hope. This book covers the daily details of these professional activities.
Leading up to the Tour, in July at the week of the Commonwealth Games in Glasgow, Susan carried the Queen's Baton on a relay leg through Yorkhill Royal Hospital for Sick Children; the next day at Celtic Park, she sang a shortened version of "Mull of Kintyre" heralding the arrival of HRH The Queen and Duke of Edinburgh at the Opening Ceremony. She enjoyed vacations in Malta and Ireland. The beginning of September, with a gaggle of local kids as an audience, she took the Ice Bucket Challenge in her backyard — some UK media deemed her Challenge "epic" and "best yet". The rest of September was filled with final preparations for the US Tour.

October 1, Susan and some team members were off to New York City for publicity work for her US Tour as well as her sixth album, Hope, which was released in the US on October 21 and in the UK on November 24. On October 2 she performed "You Raise Me Up" on NBC's Today Show and "Wish You Were Here" for Kathie Lee & Hoda; shopped at Bloomingdale's; then flew overnight to Los Angeles. On October 6, she sang "You Raise Me Up" on CBS's The Talk; later in the day she also went to Costa Mesa and taped a half-hour segment at Trinity Broadcasting Network (TBN) headquarters where she performed "I Can Only Imagine" and visited with Matt and Laurie Crouch (program aired October 8). On October 7, there was a "Susan Boyle In Concert" dress rehearsal in San Diego. The next day, Concert #1 opened the Tour at the Balboa Theatre in San Diego, California, where, after the third song, she mentioned she had a sore throat, and said, 'But, we British carry on, don't we?'; she finished the show, during and after which she received standing ovations from the sold-out audience.

"Susan Boyle In Concert" Tour began with 6 cities in southern California (Concerts #1–6), and continued with stops in Phoenix, Arizona (#7); 3 stops in Texas (#8–10); stops in Missouri (#11), Kentucky (#12), Georgia (#13); 2 stops in South Carolina (#14 & 16); a stop in North Carolina (#15); and ended with 4 stops in Florida (#17–21). Originally, 21 Concerts were scheduled; the one in San Jose, California (#5) was cancelled at the end of September; 2 others were cancelled due to a reoccurrence of the sore throat problem (#2 in Santa Barbara and #19 in Ft. Lauderdale). Thus, Susan performed 18 Concerts during the 30 days from October 8 to November 6 — 10 were declared SOLD OUT! At each show, Susan sang 24 songs during a 2-hour period, backed by special guest, Lance Ellington; back-up singers, Annie Skates, Zoe Nicholas; and a 7-piece instrumental ensemble. A local chorus of about 20 members at each venue contributed to backing her on 4 songs. On the weekend of October 18–19, she also sang "I Can Only Imagine" at the Saturday evening service and 2 Sunday morning services at Lakewood Church in Houston, Texas before her Concert #8 in Midland, Texas that evening.

Back in the UK, after a few days' rest, Susan was in London and taped a performance of "Wish You Were Here" for BBC's Children In Need as well as an interview with Lorraine Kelly and a performance of "Angel" for ITV's Lorraine — both programs aired later in the week. Later in November, Susan was again in London for an interview with Sir Terry Wogan and sang "Wish You Were Here" & "Wild Horses" accompanied only by a piano for Weekend Wogan on BBC Radio 2. December was a month of a few celebrity appearances and attending various UK Christmas productions.
