Alice lives a small and contented farm life in the valley in Virginia. Betrothed to her childhood sweetheart and ready to begin her new life, her fiancé, Edward, throws her over in favor of an exciting life in big-city Boston.

Alice, fearing that she is unable to be the exciting wife that Edward apparently desired, starts corresponding with a man in the unsettled Utah territory, a lonely railroad foreman in need of some sunny companionship. Surely, this proves the sense of adventure that Edward overlooked in her?

Jack's days run together with loneliness and monotony. Even with a well-paying job in beautiful canyon country, he knows there is something missing. When Alice arranges to meet him for a few days in Colorado to see if they're well suited, sparks fly and the couple is on their way to wedded happiness… until Edward shows up to claim his bride.

Alice is certain that Edward ended their engagement, but he insists it was a misunderstanding. Who is she to marry? Which man is the right one for Alice?

This is a sweet and clean Western romance and is a stand alone story with a HEA
